Take a few minutes to check for leaks; in the long run it will save you money. Use your water meter to check for leaks. Your meter has a low flow indicator (leak detector). It should not be moving if you have all water using appliances off. The leak detector is a small red arrow located on the face of the meter. If it is moving and all water-using appliances are off, then that indicates there is a leak present. If you have a repair and keep your receipt, you may be eligible for an adjustment off your sewer bill. You are allowed one adjustment per calendar year.

Take a few minutes to check for leaks; in the long run it will save you money. Use your water meter to check for leaks. Your meter has a low flow indicator (leak detector). It should not be moving if you have all water using appliances off. The leak detector is a small red arrow located on the face of the meter. If it is moving and all water-using appliances are off, then that indicates there is a leak present. If you have a repair and keep your receipt, you may be eligible for an adjustment off your sewer bill. You are allowed one adjustment per calendar year.

Take a few minutes to check for leaks; in the long run it will save you money. Use your water meter to check for leaks. Your meter has a low flow indicator (leak detector). It should not be moving if you have all water using appliances off. The leak detector is a small red arrow located on the face of the meter. If it is moving and all water-using appliances are off, then that indicates there is a leak present. If you have a repair and keep your receipt, you may be eligible for an adjustment off your sewer bill. You are allowed one adjustment per calendar year.

It should not be moving if you have all water using appliances off. The leak detector is a small red arrow located on the face of the meter. If it is moving and all water-using appliances are off, then that indicates there is a leak present. If you have a repair and keep your receipt, you may be eligible for an adjustment off your sewer bill. You are allowed one adjustment per calendar year.

WATER & SEWER DEPARTMENT

Take a few minutes to check for leaks; in the long run it will save you money. Use your water meter to check for leaks. Your meter has a low flow indicator (leak detector). It should not be moving if you have all water using appliances off. The leak detector is a small red arrow located on the face of the meter. If it is moving and all water-using appliances are off, then that indicates there is a leak present. If you have a repair and keep your receipt, you may be eligible for an adjustment off your sewer bill. You are allowed one adjustment per calendar year.
